Annual Review

A summary for shareholders

Introduction

The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices. The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices. The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

Key decisions

1. Approve the dividend of $0.42 per share
2. Open two new offices in Lagos and Nairobi
3. Retire the legacy billing system

Note: all amounts are in US dollars unless stated otherwise.

Financial summary

Results by segment (USD millions)
Segment	2025	2026
Consumer	41.2	48.9
Enterprise	22.7	30.1

The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

Regional notes

Region 1. The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

Region 2. The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

Region 3. The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

Region 4. The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

Region 5. The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

> “Growth came from every region this year.”

The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.

The committee reviewed the operating results for the year and found that revenue, margins and cash flow all improved against the prior period. Spending on research rose in line with the plan approved last spring, while administrative costs fell as the new procurement process took effect across all regional offices.